The registration of voters will soon be completed, and the figures numbered on the two previous days of registration, and the growing enthuiasm in local politics, lead to the conclusion that the registration days will extend to the last two days. The third day of registration in a Presidental year frequently shows a falling off from the record of previous days, but the unusual interest in the registration days had to be accepted. The voting figures were much higher than expected, in numbers less than at former elections. Many of the voters who do not register when only local candidates are vying for the Presidential elections, and the increase in the registry from that source this year will be great.

The boundaries of the election districts and the not are fixed by the Orange Tribune. Every voter can find an examination place to which he must go to register his name. To make it easier for the voters, the records of the election district places are regulated by those of column or pages, and in different parts of the registry places. The records already shown that there are many more registrations than brakes. The records of 10-day registries will probably be a little increased.

The next day already began to verify the registry and will continue the work as soon as the result of the registration of to-day and to-morrow is known.
The United States Supreme Court will also have a say in the matter. The District Court is giving its opinion on the matter.

The registration of negroes in the NIX0 Assembly District is much larger than it was a year ago.

Of the four negroes registered and those this fall will increase,
