A letter is a writer's signature; it is a document that contains the words and thoughts of the person who wrote it. In the case of the letter you mentioned, it is a letter from Miss Fanny to Mr. Crawley, discussing some matters of importance.

Miss Fanny, the writer of the letter, is a young woman with a strong sense of justice and morality. She is concerned about the well-being of the people in her society and is determined to make a difference. In her letter, she emphasizes the importance of education and the need for change in the way society operates.

Mr. Crawley, the recipient of the letter, is a man of considerable influence and power. He is not easily swayed by others, but he is interested in the ideas presented by Miss Fanny. He is prepared to listen and consider the suggestions made in the letter, but he will also seek to weigh them carefully before making any decisions.

The relationship between Miss Fanny and Mr. Crawley is one of respect and mutual respect. They are both committed to the betterment of their society, and they are eager to work together to achieve their goals. It is clear that they will engage in a thoughtful and considerate exchange of ideas, with each taking the time to understand the other's perspective.